S.R. 80 is being paved between Belle Glade/South Bay

Work began Wednesday, Jan. 20, on a $2.5 million project to repave State Road 80 from the Hillsboro Canal in Belle Glade-southwest four miles to U.S. 27 in South Bay, according to officials with the Florida Department of Transportation.

The project also includes repaving a section of Avenue E east of S.R. 80. Other improvements include adding street lights on S.R. 80.

One lane is being closed for about a mile at a time from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays to remove existing asphalt and add new pavement.

The project is expected to be completed in September.

Meanwhile, work continues on U.S. 27 south of South Bay. A 3.5-mile section is being widened from two to four lanes south to milepost 19 through March. From that point south for three miles, repaving is under way. And from that point south for 6.5 miles, widening is underway to four lanes through January 1994.

Pahokee Chamber breakfast is next

A spokesman for the hospital will be the guest speaker. The breakfast will be held at Everglades Memorial beginning at 7:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

City officials are worried

The 1993 Special Census will end this week and officials with the City of Belle Glade are worried.

At least two of the city's commissioners and other residents of Belle Glade say they have yet to be counted.

The city will spend close to $70,000 for the recount and City Manager Lomax Harrelle said it is vital that all residents are counted.

If the census takers have not been to your house, city hall would like to hear from you.

Call Sue Teets, Assistant to the City Manager, at 996-0100. Mrs. Teets said only four cities in the state requested the special census - all in Palm Beach County. She said it's important everyone be counted.

Topless bar in Belle Glade? "No way" says city officials

Topless dancing in Belle Glade? Not if Belle Glade City Commissioners have their way.

The Banyan Tree Lounge, located at the corner of Avenue L and SR 80, wants to have topless women dancers on Wednesday evenings.

Belle Glade Commissioners found out about the plans of lounge owner Howard Hill at Monday night's commission meeting.

Commissioner Steve Weeks said he had heard the rumor this week and asked Chief of Police Michael Miller if there was any truth to the story.

"Unfortunately, it's true," Chief Miller said, adding that Palm Beach County does not have an ordinance prohibiting topless dancing in bars.

He said Mr. Hill talked to him recently about the possibility of having topless dancers at the Banyan Tree on Wednesday nights.

"I expressed my displeasure," said the chief, who added that it was not desirable for this small town and it would "breed an undesirable element."

Commissioner Weeks said he understood there is an ordinance in the county which prohibits the sale of alcohol where there is topless dancing and asked City Attorney John Baker to check out the ordinance and report back to the commissioners.

"I don't want to push my morals off on anyone. This is probably fine in West Palm Beach and fine in Miami, but not good in a small town like this," Weeks said.

Howard (Doc) Hill could not be reached for comment. He has been the owner of the Banyan Tree for about a year.

City's resolution charging festivals is unconstitutional says Konchellah

By BRENDA BUNTING

SUN Editor

A Belle Glade resident is questioning the legality of a resolution made by the city commission in November of 1992.

Cartheda Konchellah, president and chief executive officer for the Zora Neale Hurston Roof Garden Museum, Inc., said she believes the commission has violated the constitutional rights of the museum and other organizations.

She contends the resolution is unfair and unconstitutional.

The resolution sets application fees and damage deposits for festivals and events in the city.

It exempts the Black Gold

Cartheda Konchellah

Jubilee festival on the grounds that it is a city-sponsored event and the Afro Arts Festival because of its longevity.

"Resolution 2055, adopted by the City on November 23, 1992, violates the constitutional rights of the Museum, as well as other organizations seeking to sponsor special events within the City," she told commissioners.

"Regarding the use of tax dollars, it is unconstitutional to provide services to one organization and not give equal consideration to all other organizations," she added.

Mrs. Konchellah went before the commission January 11 and asked the city to waive the $500 fee. They told her at that time they could not waive the fee, but asked her to come back

State agrees to Closter Farms swap with Fanjuls

The seemingly endless battle over restoration of the Everglades took a mighty leap forward Tuesday when the state agreed in principle to swap the 2720-acre Closter Farms property to the Fanjul family for about 4,000 acres southeast of there.

The state would use the 4,000 acres received in the trade to build Stormwater Treatment Areas - filter marshes designed to cleanse farm runoff-water of Phosphorus.

Phosphorus is said to be the biggest pollution problem facing the Everglades.

The Fanjuls, owners of the Closter Farms company, will be able to keep raising sugar cane at the 2720-acre site the company has been farming under state lease.

The trade must still be approved by the governor and Cabinet before March 9.

The deal had stalled over objections to the Fanjuls' desire to keep pumping polluted drainage water back into Lake Okeechobee.

Flo-Sun Inc., the umbrella corporation for the Fanjuls' farm businesses, decided to offer to pump the "used" water into an underground storage well system from which it can be withdrawn and used in times of drought.

The Pahokee East Beach Development Authority had applied to the state for an option to purchase the Closter 2720 acres.

The Authority wants to build homes on the land and expand Pahokee's tax base.

Something for everyone...The arts and crafts booths at Saturday's Muckstepper's Reunion offered African jewelry, paintings and other items. The festival got off to a slow start, but picked up speed in the afternoon with storytelling and music by various groups.

Easy come...easy go. That's a good motto for Jerry Huit, 18, who netted a nice largemouth bass Saturday at Canal Point. He released the bass - it's illegal to keep sport fish caught in a cast net. The other fellows fishing with Jerry declined to be identified.

SFWMD Chairman Allan Milledge speaks to Ladies of the Lake

By MARGARET BARLETTO

With the holidays just a pleasant glow in the past, the Ladies of the Lake, U.S.A. are jumping right back into the "SWIM" of things and they're more active than ever.

This Saturday, several of the Ladies will travel to River Ranch Resort on the shore of the Kissimmee River to join forces with several other organizations of citizens and agriculturalists who are concerned about the future of private citizens' property rights in Florida.

The meeting has been called by members of ROAR (Realists Opposing the Alleged Restoration of the Kissimmee River) and is set for 10 a.m. at the resort on Highway 60 East of Lake Wales.

All citizens and organizations concerned about property rights, sovereign land issues and the infringement of these rights by the state agencies are urged to attend the meeting.

Last Wednesday the Ladies hosted a luncheon for South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD) Board of Governors Chairman Allan Milledge. The well-attended luncheon brought out one issue that continues to uppermost in the minds of area residents.

"Look at us," urged Sharon Collins. "We're real people and we will be affected by this."

Mrs. Collins asked Mr. Milledge to be reasonable about setting goals for the removal of phosphorus from soils that contained the nutrient before farmers planted the first stalk of sugar cane.

"If we didn't put it in, we shouldn't have to pay," she said. "We're more than willing to help, but we shouldn't have to pay for what we didn't put there."

Mr. Milledge agreed that Everglades Agricultural Area farmers should only be charged for the removal of the phosphorus they contribute to the water supply, but was unclear as to what that contribution might be.

Some question was raised, but unanswered, as to whether the phosphorus that evaporates into the air, forms rain and is dispersed elsewhere may be taxed in the future.

Mr. Milledge painted himself as "an agent of change" -- change that he said is necessary to save Florida's environment from the needs of an ever-increasing population. He also said that while the initial push is to clean up water from agricultural runoff in the EAA, urban areas will pay a much higher price in the future.

The problem of changing in our society from using nature as a dumping ground for human waste is over and now it's time to adapt to the changes, " he said. "There's no way the urban areas are not going to have to pay a whole lot more and they'll be on our backs, too. If you're serious about living here, these are all circumstances that will have to be addressed," he said.

U.S. Sugar Corp. presents $30,000 donation to rebuild Homestead Migrant Day Care

U.S. Sugar Corporation presented a $30,000 check to the Redlands Christian Migrant Association Day Care Center to help rebuild the South Dade child care center after it was damaged by Hurricane Andrew.

The check, presented jointly by U.S. Sugar and the United Way of Palm Beach County, represents donations made by U.S. Sugar employees to help in hurricane relief, together with a matching donation by U.S. Sugar Corp.

"The people of U.S. Sugar Corp. wanted this donation to help the farming community affected by the hurricane," said J. Nelson Fairbanks, President of U.S. Sugar Corp.

We are very pleased to help the Redlands Christian Migrant Association in the important work they do to provide services to farmworkers and their children."

The Redlands Christian Migrant Association (RCMA), a non-profit, non-sectarian voluntary organization, serves over 500 children in three major labor camps in the Homestead/Florida City area. The six child care centers at these camps were severely damaged in the hurricane.

U.S. Sugar's donation will help to rebuild the South Dade Labor Camp and create additional space for needed family services.

The South Dade Camp is one where close to 300 families live, with the majority of their income earned in farm work.

The family services area will allow RCMA to offer adult education, parent training and other community-based functions.

The total sum needed for this effort is $175,000.

In total, RCMA serves over 5,000 children annually in all of its 74 centers and programs in 19 counties of the state. The goal of the program is to enable farmworker children to participate fully in the same opportunities for health services, education and social development that other Florida children enjoy.

Children benefit from donation by U.S. Sugar Corporation

U.S. Sugar Corp. President J. Nelson Fairbanks and Barbara Mainster, Executive Director, Redlands Christian Migrant Association (RCMA), hold the $30,000 donation check from U.S. Sugar Corp. to help rebuild the RCMA South Dade child care center after it was damaged by Hurricane Andrew. The check represents donations from U.S. Sugar employees, together with a matching donation by U.S. Sugar. Program begins to eradicate melaleuca trees

The National Audubon Society, with the help of a unique inter-agency task force, began a program Tuesday to exterminate exotic melaleuca trees on Audubon's Lake Okeechobee Sanctuary.

A native plant of Australia, melaleuca trees were introduced to South Florida at the turn of the century because they were plants that could drain the wetlands and convert them to forested land. Since the melaleuca produces millions of seeds and grows rapidly, the tree spreads like a giant weed displacing a replacement all native vegetation.

According to a recent report by the South Florida Water Management District, there are 400,000 acres of melaleuca, growing at a rate of approximately 50 acres of wetlands per day. The plant has the potential of invading all of South Florida's wetlands.

National Audubon has leased and managed 25,000 acres of marshes within the water control dike around Lake Okeechobee from the State of Florida since the 1930s.

According to Audubon Sanctuary Department's South Florida area manager Ed Carlson, and Lake Okeechobee Sanctuary warden, Noel Chandler, melaleuca is becoming established in the sanctuary and needs to be controlled now.

"National Audubon has launched a major campaign to push state and federal agencies to restore the natural flow of water in the Everglades system," said Carlson.

But

restoring the hydrology of the Everglades will do little good in the long run if melaleuca are allowed to destroy native plant communities and wildlife values.

National Audubon applied to the Florida Department of Natural Resources for a permit to exterminate the melaleuca with a herbicide.

The application produced a response from the natural resources department as well as the U.S. Corp of Engineers and the South Florida Water Management District. These agencies have similar programs with the National Park Service in big areas of South Florida.

Beginning January 26 and continuing through this week, representatives of National Audubon and each agency will exterminate thousands of melaleuca trees from the inside dike of Lake Okeechobee, north of Indian Prairie Canal.

The trees will be slashed and injected with the herbicide,

Arsenal, a systemic chemical which kills the tree but does not result in contaminating the water or harming wildlife.

Watermill Express opens in Pahokee

Safe, affordable drinking water is now available in Pahokee, according to Merle Jackson, promotional manager for Watermill Express.

Mr. Jackson said his water, treated by the State of Florida, offers premium drinking water at only 25 cents per gallon.

Open 24 hours, 365 days a year, Watermill Express will be in the Foodland Shopping Plaza, 550 East Main Street, Pahokee.

Mr. Jackson says the sophisticated eight-stage cleansing process which prepares the water has several safety monitoring systems which ensure the best quality water available.

Every Watermill Express outlet is serviced and sanitized daily in addition to weekly and monthly water quality tests, said Jackson.

He said unlike traditional bottled water delivery services, customers need to supply their own clean water containers which helps keep the costs down as well as eliminate the disposal of plastic containers.

Watermill Express will have a grand opening on Monday, February 1 through February 10 with free demonstrations.

There will be registration for a free drawing for one year's supply of Watermill Express pure drinking water.

seconded by Mayor Bailey after he turned the gavel over to Vice Mayor Weeks.

That motion also failed after Weeks and Tucker voted no and Bythwood and Bailey voted for the motion.

Commissioner Weeks said the attorney should check out the legality of the resolution, and if Resolution 2055 was indeed a violation of the constitution, he said he would like to see the commission take away the exemptions of the Black Gold Jubilee and Afro Arts Festival.

"When we made this resolution it was because we had a very tight budget," Weeks said. "If we exempt the museum we will be opening the door for others. I don't see how we can do that."

Mrs. Konchellah said she will be back before the commission again February 8 to ask for a refund of the fees.

"This is everyone's tax dollars," she said. "Either this resolution applies to everyone so everyone benefits, or no one benefits, but it has to be applied equally."

Why punish drug users? They are the victims.

There are lots of things that bother me. For instance about Joan Crawford and story in Mommie Dearest where the child hung her clothes on a wire clothes hanger and Crawford raised hell about it. What were the wire coat hangers doing in the closet in the first place? If she didn't like them, why were they there? I'm making a point.

If a kid wants to buy dope, he's a victim. Why are there undercover agents who are pretending they are selling the dope and then arresting them? Why aren't those agents out there trying to find the people who are selling the dope instead of the victims?

I watched The Untouchables with Elliott Ness and when they were trying to stop the sale of alcohol during prohibition time, maybe it was wrong, but he never sent his agents out on the streets to sell a bottle of whiskey to an unsuspecting citizen. That's the same thing.

And why is it that you're a victim and your car is confiscated you have to pay $250 to get it back when you had nothing to do with the drugs? Say your child was caught in your car, that he took without your permission, and you have to pay $250 to get it back. It is cash money. No cashier's checks, no money order.

If they want to stop the drug traffic, why don't they get the big guys, the dealers, instead of the victims who are hooked on the drugs?

And why don't they stop the illegal drugs from getting into this country? Now can anybody answer me that?

Not happy with coverage of Glades Day game

Letter to the editor

Thanks for the help

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the City of Belle Glade, I want to thank you for your outstanding efforts to ensure a successful re-count in the City's special Census. Your assistance in informing our citizens about the Census have been instrumental in contributing to its success.

This special Census could prove to be one of the most important events to occur within the City of Belle Glade in the 1990's.

An increase in population count stands to add thousands of dollars not only to the City, but also to the many government agencies that

This is in reference to the Glades Day/Jupiter Christian basketball game.

It is a shame that a reporter would write, and what a paper would print such an article as was printed in The Sun on January 21, 1993.

Yes, all the negative facts were true, but a true sports writer for high school sports tries to capture the positive highlights of a game, example, points, rebounds, assists.

Children need to be praised and encouraged to participate in high school sports. When negative actions receive more publicity than the positive ones, what message is being sent?

Please give us as readers a true picture of the game. Thank you.

Mr. Newton responds:

I agree completely; it is a shame that a reporter would write, and that a paper would print, such an article as was printed in The Sun. It is similarly a shame that yes; all the negative facts are true.

I agree that children need to be praised and encouraged to participate in high school sports.

When negative actions receive more publicity than the positive ones, what message is being sent? The message that such negative behavior is not appreciated, I hope.

Please note: I did not fault Sara Woodham for slapping at the girl who grabbed her. The JC player put lots of effort into provoking Woodham, and finally got what she wanted: Woodham out.

In a four-and-three-quarter-inch story, less than half was devoted to the negative aspects of the game. The remainder was stat, etc.

I'm sorry to have offended you, but, painful though it may be, I feel I need to comment on bad behavior because I love high school sports. If my story embarrasses someone to the point of altering behavior, it'll have been worth while.

You would have me pretend everything's OK when I don't think it is.

You certainly have the right to have your opinion right here with mine. You're invited to reply.

administer services to our residents. Therefore, your assistance may ultimately benefit countless of people in the Glades.

Please express my appreciation to your staff for their efforts on the City's behalf. They were an important part of a community-wide program to get the word out to our residents.

If I can answer any questions concerning the special Census, please don't hesitate to call me or my assistant, Sue Teets.

Sincerely,

Guest editorial

By Senator Connie Mack (R-FL)

Term limits issue difficult, but right

Should the terms of elected officials be limited? When I first heard of term limits, I instinctively opposed the idea.

As someone who believes in free markets and free ideas, how could I support restricting a voter's free decision to elect someone — even an incumbent? After all, don't voters have the opportunity to limit an incumbent's term at election time?

For some, even for me at one point, limiting terms meant limiting freedom at the ballot box. As I talked with friends, family members and constituents about the issue, another view emerged that captured the frustrations of voters who believe the system must be changed.

They see Congress as a stale institution entrenched in the power of the incumbency. In many regards, they were right.

Decisions — from issues to office space — are often made on the basis of seniority, not merit.

For an institution that talks a lot about fairness and opportunity in America, Congress is probably the last place to practice it. Fairness and opportunity only count if you've been around long enough.

As a Senator, and a Representative before that, I've seen important people in positions of power who have stopped caring about anything other than expanding the role of government into our lives. As a result, government has reached beyond reasonable limits and has lost touch with most Americans.

Without term limits, we may see an expanding "governing class," an elite group of public officials who have never had a job outside government. Even now, some in Congress will never have to live with the consequences of their votes in areas of over-regulation and taxation, for instance.

Obviously, I've worked with those in Congress who care deeply about their responsibilities and have been outstanding to work with.

Under term limits, I'm certain they can move on to other areas of public service.

Weighing the different points of views on term limits, I walked into the voting booth in November not knowing how I would cast my ballot. As I thought more about the issue, I concluded that ultimately, term limits are fair and just. I voted for term limits.

In a democracy that thrives on the exchange of free ideas, it's important that new points of view be brought into the public arena. Term limits will bring a sense of freshness and responsibility to government. It will create a system in which, issues are debated on merit, not on the power that comes with seniority.

To keep pace with a changing society, its leaders must change. There's no shortage of innovative ideas, only the opportunity to express them in the arena of public service.

The people of Florida have spoken by overwhelmingly supporting term limits at the ballot box. Attempts to legally overturn the initiative should stop.

Floridians and other citizens across the country have realized that term limits would reinvigorate America's democracy with new ideas and leaders.

The entrenched Congress should realize it, too.

For your own good - know the warning signs of diabetes

A new index released last week by the American Diabetes Association indicates that significant deficits in diabetes resources need to be addressed in Florida. The Diabetes Index was commissioned by the association to provide a state-by-state assessment of probable access to health care services.

Diabetes is a complex disease that increases the risk for other complications such as heart and kidney disease, stroke, blindness and loss of limbs. For 150,000 people a year, diabetes is fatal. Because there is no cure for diabetes, people with the disease face a lifetime of special medical care and services. The multidisciplinary health care team may include primary care physicians, nurses, dietitians, endocrinologists, ophthalmologists, exercise specialists and podiatrists.

Because diabetes can lead to life-threatening complications, access to these resources is vital to a degree not seen with most chronic diseases.

Research indicates that early detection and aggressive management of diabetes may prevent many of the life-threatening complications of diabetes.

Centers for Disease Control statistics indicate that three dollars will be saved for every detection/education dollar spent. In Florida, alone diabetes annually accounts for:

- 3,780 lower-extremity amputations
- 605 new cases of kidney failure
- 915 new cases of blindness
- 178,000 hospitalizations
- 196,000 residents with long-term reduction in activity

In 1987, the direct (medical care) and indirect (lost productivity) cost of diabetes in Florida was in excess of 1.25 billion dollars.

Resources in five categories were examined for the Index: state policies, funding practices, services (such as educational and outreach programs), health care providers and facilities offering diabetes care. According to the association, the availability of these kinds of resources can indicate how accessible diabetes care is in a particular state.

The association points out that while financial assistance may be available to qualified individuals, resources and levels of funding, and subsequently the level and quality of care, vary tremendously from county to county, often not addressing the needs of the uninsured, working poor.

One million residents in Florida are estimated to have diabetes, only half of whom have been diagnosed. The Index notes that $700,000 of state funds is designated for insulin and supplies. With the average cost of insulin, syringes and blood glucose testing materials running at $7 per day, funding would easily be exhausted in 24 hours.

The Policy Measures category of the Diabetes Index, which looked at laws affecting diabetes care, programs and services, gave Florida credit for having in place a Comprehensive Health Insurance Program for high risk individuals. However, enrollment in this state mandated health insurance program has been closed since June 30, 1991 due to inadequate levels of funding. Furthermore, for those fortunate enough to have enrolled prior to the June 30, 1991 cut-off date, both premiums and deductibles are unacceptably high as would be expected when ratings are based on medical history as opposed to community ratings.

The Diabetes Index is an important first step in identifying gaps in care and filling them," said Dr. Karl. "Florida ranked seventh in the nation in providing services for people with diabetes. With most of the real innovation in health care reform currently happening at the state level, we hope the Index will help turn the state's attention to the problems of the 1 million Florida residents with diabetes and help us work to ensure that the worst consequences of this disease are prevented."

CDA is the only major national effort to improve child care by evaluating and recognizing the skills of individuals providing care.

Although the first credential was awarded just over 15 years ago, 50 states plus the District of Columbia already include CDA in child care licensing regulations. Others are considering similar action.

Parents who use child care are especially concerned today about their children's welfare. Every candidate for the CDA credential is observed working with children and is evaluated by a team which includes early childhood experts and a parent.

The candidate must demonstrate ability to work with families to develop children's physical and intellectual capabilities in a safe and healthy learning environment.

1. Intense headache.
2. Difficulty in alternation in speech.

5. Paralysis, tingling or numbness of one or more parts of the body, usually localized on one side of the body, as an arm, a leg, or both, or the muscles of one side of the face (evidenced by the drooping eyelid, or sagging of one side of the mouth).

6. Difficulty in breathing or swallowing.

7. Loss of control of bladder and/or bowel.

WHIPLASH

Whiplash injuries can result from a sudden backward and forward whipping movement of the neck, caused by an auto collision, a fall, a motor-vehicle accident, or even a violent blow. The ligaments and muscles controlling the spinal segments are stretched or sprained, allowing the vertebrae to slip into abnormal positions. Nerves are then "pinched" or irritated, giving rise to headaches, nausea, dizziness and other pain.

Show Your Loved Ones How Much You Care... By Pre-planning

At your death, those who remain must deal not only with the grief of your loss to them, but with the myriad decisions to be made in the planning of your final arrangements.

If you pre-plan your funeral arrangements, it will greatly simplify the difficult task your loved ones must face during the time of sorrow. YOU will make the choices of arrangements and price to be involved in your funeral, thus freeing your family of this sad duty during a time of grief and confusion.

Bring peace of mind to both yourself and your family by doing this important planning for the future.

For more information on the pre-planning of a funeral, there is no obligation - we will simply try to answer any questions you may have now to help avoid any unnecessary trauma in the future.
